- 1998-99   Graduate Student in Music Composition, The Pennsylvania State University, State College, Pennsylvania

Current Academic Teaching Experience

- 2005-present   Professor of Music, Adams State University, Alamosa, CO
- I teach all Music Theory and Aural Skills courses (seven courses), Form and Analysis, Music Recording Techniques, Music Recording Seminar, Introduction to Music Technology, Applied Composition, Commercial Music Composition and Production, and the Music Recording capstone project. I also taught applied upper strings in 2011 and 2005-2006 and Topics in Music Business in 2012.
  - In the online Master of Arts in Music Education program I teach the courses Analytical Techniques, Topics in Jazz and Rock, and previously taught Orchestration and Arranging. I have taught nineteen online courses in the master's program since 2014. I currently direct the program, was assistant director from 2014-2020, and was the primary designer of the curriculum.
  - I am the author of the books used in the undergraduate music theory sequence and combine classical, jazz, and pop/rock music (including much current-day music) in these courses. My books are also used as review books in the Analytical Techniques course in the Master of Arts program. My course books can be found in the teaching area of my website.
<https://www.matthewschildtmusic.com/teaching>

- I coordinate and oversee the music technology lab and recording studio suite. In 2011, I designed and configured the recording studio suite as part of a renovation to the music building and currently maintain the facility and use the studio extensively with students.
- I supervise five music lab work-study students, supervise the music theory tutor who leads supplemental sessions for music theory courses, and supervise the sound recording work-study students and oversee the recording of all concerts and recitals.
- I oversee student composer concerts and senior composition recitals.
- I advise all composition and string majors.
- I actively recruit for the music department and regularly speak with high schools. In the past three years I have spoken with twenty-five high schools in-person and online and have delivered presentations and master classes. In addition, I have taught multiple classes and sessions for high schools visiting campus.

Administrative Experience

2020-present Program Director, Master of Arts in Music Education, Adams State University, Alamosa, CO
